Dear Sir:-

Your letter of January 19th duly received. In reply beg to say that I haven't had a new list made up in the last three or four years on account of the fact that conditions have been such up till the past two seasons that I did not have stocks to offer outside of my regular trade.

However I hope this summer to get up a new trade list with some photographs of cabbage that I aim to get from my trials.

I have on hand now only the following varieties of cabbage:

All Head Early.
Early Jersey Wakefield.
Charleston Wakefield.
Stein's Early Flat Dutch.
Large Late Flat Dutch.
Fottler's Brunswick.
Succession.

The cabbage seed business on Long Island has been rather upset for the past two years. Farmers have not been anxious to grow seed when they could make so much money out of potatoes. Now however the potato market is all shot to pieces. The price is down and most farmers have some to sell. It may help us in the contracting of cabbage and other seeds for delivery after harvest of the 1922 crop.

With kind regards. I am,

Yours very truly,

Linnaeus Allen
